Herbaceous, particularly on the bouquet, but there's plenty of zing and zap to the palate. Intensity is the key here.

Soft ripe seductive wine with a bright berry fruit bouquet and lovely toasty oak support. Very approachable briary palate showing well-handled oak and lively acidity.
90/100 2015 James Halliday's Australian Wine Companion
Sweet, caramelly oak on ripe, blackberryed fruit. It's punchy and generous, if a little warm/baked. The way the wine oozes smoothly through the mouth will be the feature most appreciated.

This deluxe bottle and packaging pays homage to Myriam Keoghan's Belgian ancestry, not the dimensions of the wine, which will, however only be produced two or three times a decade. The black fruits, dark chocolate and licorice have ripe tannins and a very generous helping of oak.

Heavy glove of oak wraps around a powerful hand of fruit. Anise, black cherry, cloves and violet, with resinous/toasty oak adding the velvet. A foresty/spearmint-like edge adds something extra. All this needs is time to settle into itself.

A 67/33% blend matured for 18 months in French oak. A very intense and powerful palate that manages to be light on its feet thanks to the balance between fruit, oak and tannins, and the marriage of peppery, firm black cherry of the Adelaide Hills and softer Langhorne Creek fruit on the mid-palate.

This was made with Portuguese vintage port as a reference point, in particular the low baume keeping the accent on the spicy black fruits and licorice of the Adelaide Hills Shiraz. Easy to enjoy now, but will only get better (more complex) over the next 5 years.

2013 Winestate World's Greatest Shiraz Challenge

2013 Taste.com.au Tony Love, National Wine Writer

Rich and satisfying, both in flavor and its medium-to-full-bodied carriage, this double act is typical of the blend with sweetly ripe and spicy shiraz adding concentrated fruit to dark and fragrant cabernet with supportive – not blocky- tannins. Anvers's location in the west of the Hills region towards McLaren Vale delivers great balance with gorgeous ripeness. Ripe deliciousness.

"If there's one thing I love it's a good, highly drinkable bottle of cabernet. This Anvers cabernet is just that.....It's an accessible, easy-to-drink style of cabernet but there is a good cut of grainy tannin and the balance to see it drink well over at least the medium term – this is by no means for immediate consumption only. That said, this wine's chocolaty, pencilly, raisiny flavours are so inviting and enjoyable that it's ready to roll from now – slips down very nicely, thank you very much."

"Mint and blackberry fruit aromas supported by mocha and savoury oak. Good structure to the palate; firm fine-grained tannins and good length."

"Medium red-purple; the moderately intense bouquet has a mix of redcurrant and cassis in pure varietal mode; there is plenty of flesh and fruit concentration on the palate, again with hints of chocolate; good fruit and oak balance are matched by supple, flowing tannins. Spends 14 months in a mix of French and American oak."

"A new winery started only in 1998, this 100% Cabernet Sauvignon is produced from 40-year old vines. It spent 18 months in both French and American oak of which 60% was new. Impressively made and California-like, with jammy black cherry and currant fruit, and coffee, chocolate, and toasty American oak in the background, this full-bodied, juicy, ripe Cabernet has low acidity, plenty of alcohol (15%), and a lusty, hedonistic finish. Drink it over the next 8-10 years."

Mark Squire's 2002 E-Zine on Wine. May / June,
"This wine is taking no prisoners at the moment, and is hard to peg as cabernet. Ignoring that, it shows pretty well. Sweet, jammy, blueberry fruit is in the mid-palate, and there is plenty of sweet, obvious oak up front. It has excellent depth, but is not unduly thick or clunky. What is surprising is that the wine actually shows some balance, and structure. Tannins pop out with air. This is something that I suspect will come into fine balance with cellaring. It is also something that is approachable now but may close down. I suspect another three years of cellaring (maybe five?) and this will actually improve the elegance and refinement—but it will never lose that overt, tasty flavor. I hope. 90-92 points."

Deep red. Slightly less bright than the McLaren Vale Shiraz; a 75/10/10 regional blend that works very well, although the Adelaide Hills drives the wine with its spicy, lively, almost urgent thrust of black cherry/berry fruit, and the fine tannins that underpin the long palate and finish. Especially pleasing to see the flagship screwcapped, the standard wine cork-finished. So often it's the other way around.

A 70/30 Adelaide Hills/Langhorne Creek blend in a very expensive, massive screen-printed bottle. Happily, the wine is very good, with black and red cherry and spice ex the Adelaide Hills component anchored by the darker berry fruit of the Langhorne Creek contribution; 21 months in French oak completes the picture.
